St. Paul's Methodist Church, near Earleville, is a simple 19th century country chapel with some unusual and pleasing architectural features. The southwest gable has four gothic windows with stained glass. Above the windows the siding changes from clapboard to decorative cut shingles. In the gable is a rose window. To the south is a bell tower with steeple and opposite it is a gabled entrance which matches that beneath the tower. It is three bays deep on each side beyond the entrance bay. There are buttresses at each corner.
